2024 Groundswell Profiles Study and Source Guide

The Groundswell Profiles invite Kentuckians in every school district to join in a groundswell of education action.

They rest on two deep convictions:

- Education can be the pathway to a larger life for Kentucky's people.
- A groundswell of public engagement can build a pathway wide enough for all to flourish.

Groundswell Profiles offer data you can use to become part of that groundswell, and this supporting tool offers a guided approach to studying the Profile for your own community. At the end, of this guide, you can also see details on all our data points and their sources.

Step 1: Looking at the Data

Find your district's 2024 Groundswell Profile at prichardcommittee.org/2024Profiles and use the questions below as a way to think about the data on your local schools.

1. Page 1 shows ten educational indicators for your community. Take a couple of minutes to look at the information, and then identify one or two data points as cause for celebration. Which do you choose, and why?

| 2. | Give Page 1 another look, and choose one or two other indicators that cause you some concern.  Make notes on which ones, and why they seem important.                   |

| 5. | Page 4 starts with some additional data on life in your community. These patterns are partly about      |
|----|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|    | the past: they're results of where education has and has not worked as a path to larger lives. They're  |
|    | also partly about the future: they shape what will be easy or more difficult for folks in your place as |
|    | they continue to build their lives. Think a little about what you see, and take some more notes.        |
|    |                                                                                                         |

Step 2: Identifying Some Priorities

| 1. | Based on what you've seen, | what else do you | want to know? | Who might you | ask for more |
|----|----------------------------|------------------|---------------|---------------|--------------|
|    | information?               |                  |               |               |              |

2. Based on what you've seen, what do you see as current challenges for your community? What roles could you play in helping meet one of those challenges? Who could you ask to help?

Step 3: Sharing Your Thoughts

If you're studying your Groundswell Profile as part of a meeting or team project, you can do your sharing with those folks. If you're working alone, we hope you'll grab at least one friend to discuss what you've seen.

1. Based on everything you've read, share something to celebrate and something that concerns you. If you're working with others, you can do that in conversation. If you're working alone, grab at least one friend to discuss what you've seen. You want to add notes as you listen to others.

2. Based on your study, share a challenge you could help meet, and a starting idea or two of how to do it. Again, you may want to add notes as you listen to others.

Step 4: Building a Groundswell

What comes next is up to you and anyone you decide to work with. We hope you'll take action to build local understanding and engagement in support of Kentucky education.

We also hope you will share as you go, letting us know what you're learning, what you're building, and how we can help. You can find resources at prichardcommittee.org/groundswellinitiative, and we welcome emails to groundswell@prichardcommittee.org.
